Excerpt: . question was fully considered in the case of Willis Macklin v. State, decided at the recent Dallas Term, where we reached the same conclusion and made the same holding. 5. Again, it is insisted that there was error in the action of the court in refusing to sustain appellant s challenge to the talesmen summoned by the sheriff when all the names of the special venire had been exhausted, counsel for appellant contending that the Act of the Twentyl inth Legislature repeals the law that had previously existed author izing the sheriff to summon talesmen, and that a jury could only be obtained through the act of a jury commission, and any act of the court ordering the sheriff to summon talesmen was not only illegal but void. By an inspection of this act (see page 17, Acts Twenty-Ninth Legislature) it will be...
